Now Taking Orders. Introducing Icom's New F52D Series

KIRKLAND, Wash. (August 2017) – Modern technology and Icom's legendary quality are combined in the new F52D/F62D handheld radio. Ideal for public safety and service professionals, this next generation IDAS™ radio is built to withstand tough environments. The F52D series not only inherits the technical features from the F3400 series, but keeps the popular footprint and features of its precursor, the F50V series.

The new and improved F52D series is smaller and lighter than the F50V series, and will easily fit in the palm of your hands. This rugged series was redesigned to include two slanted knobs for easy operation. State-of-the-art improvements like OTAP, Bluetooth®, multiple operating modes, and more are packed into this compact device.

As one of the most compact packages available today, the F52D series is also loaded with safety and security features no one would want to be without. Functions like man down, lone worker and emergency key add additional reassurance during intense situations. Security features include digital/analog voice scrambler, password protection and more.

Other Features Include:

- Multiple operating modes
- Full dot-matrix display
- OTAP (Over-the-Air Programming) function
- IP67/66/55/54 waterproof & dust-tight protection
- Voice recording
- Active noise cancelling functions
